HOFFMAN HALL WILL SOON BE REBUILTOTHER IMPROVEMENTS AT UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH.Brief Outline of History of Great Mountain Educational Institution.

New York, July 14.—(Special).—To replace Hoffman hall, burned last year, will be one of the purposes of the nationwide campaign of the Episcopal church so far as the University of the South is concerned. That dormitory, which housed some sixty students, was one of twenty buildings of the university built out of Sewanee sandstone. When fire destroyed the building, Sewanee had no means to replace it, but now that the nationwide campaign is in progress to enlarge the work of the church, it will be possible to build a larger and a better dormitory on the old site.

Historically the beginnings of the University of the South are not without interest. The idea of establishing a great church university for the south came to Bishop Polk, of Louisiana, in 1855. He considered the matter with a breadth of vision that was striking, for he planned to found his college for one diocese, as had usually been done, but to extend outside the state and to weld at least ten states to the purpose. These he chose south of Virginia and Kentucky, and east of the Mississippi and thus he combined the dioceses contained in the states of Louisiana, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas.

At that time the south was in an exultant mood politically and had no fears for the future. Bishop Polk's idea was warmly supported by the entire south and $500,000 for the college was subscribed liberally and rapidly.

The Cumberland table land in Franklin county, Tennessee, was chosen as the site of the college and the work of construction began. Then came the Civil war. Bishop Polk became a general of the Confederacy and fought against Grant in his first battle at Belmont. In the end the entire endowment was swept away and such buildings as had been erected were destroyed by the federal army. The cornerstone even was carried away piece by piece for relics.

Although chartered in 1855, it was not until ten years later that the college began its real life. In that year there were fourteen students. The next year, however, the students numbered 40 and seven years later they numbered 243. Since then Sewanee has been a vital factor in the educational life of the south.

When the college was built, the railway leading up to it was the steepest mountain road then in existence and quite an attraction in itself. Now the new Dixie highway will cross the Sewanee and that certain to make its reputation very great indeed.

Famous among those to be graduated from Sewanee are Maj.—Gen. William C. Gorgas, Maj.-Gen. Leon Wood, Rev. Dr. Hudson Stuck, archdeacon of Alaska; Senator John M. McMillan, Mississippi; Rev. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity church, New York City; and Maj. Archie Butt, who was aide to President Roosevelt. It will be remembered that Maj. Butt lost his life on the Titanic after drawing a revolver to protect one of the boats and then doffing his cap and wishing the women and children "God-speed."

While Sewanee now is conducting a campaign for a $1,000,000 endowment in the states she serves, the appeal to replace Hoffman hall is made more general through the nationwide campaign. In the new building will be the college commons, for one of the two dining rooms in which the students ate in the burned building.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. What was the effect of camouflaging a ship?—R. T. E.

A. A submarine might spot a ship five miles away, estimate its course, submerge and attempt to intercept it, but this ship might have a keel painted fifty feet down its side and the actual keel blocked out. This would give it the appearance of traveling in a course that was quite off the actual course. The calculations of the submarine would be quite wrong and the ship would not be intercepted at all. It would be saved by the deception of its camouflage.

Q. What is the best way to kill a dog painlessly?—C. E. G.

A. The Animal Rescue league informs us that a dog may best be killed by the administration of chloroform. A sponge containing the chloroform may be held to the nose of the dog until it becomes unconscious, and it may be so placed that the dog will breathe the chloroform until it is dead.

Q. Is there any way to prevent the eyes watering when preparing onions?—H. C. V.

A. Yes. Pour scalding water over the onions before starting to peel them.

Q. What were the principal items produced in great bulk by the United States during the war?—E. B. A.

A. The following items are among those produced in great quantities: Blankets, almost 20,000,000; wool coats, over 12,000,000; overcoats, almost 8,000,000; shoes, over 26,000,000; stockings, almost 30,000,000; frozen beef, over 250,000,000 pounds; flour, about 542,000,000 pounds; cigarettes, about 2,500,000,000; beans, about 40,000,000 pounds; hard bread, about 28,000,000 pounds; salt, about 14,000,000 pounds.

Q. Why is Woodrow Wilson sometimes called "Tommy"?—H. D. A.

A. The president's full name in his boyhood was Thomas Woodrow Wilson. As a boy he was Tommy Wilson. Later in life he discontinued the use of the first of the three names and signed himself Woodrow Wilson. The Tommy is remembered only by those who knew him in his boyhood. ## The "Million-Dollar Editorial"

Writer of the Article in the Chicago Tribune, Entitled "Ford Is an Anarchist," Takes the Witness Stand.

Clifford S. Raymond, author of the editorial which has been known as the "million-dollar editorial," because it forms the basis of the libel suit brought by Henry Ford against the Chicago Tribune, was the first witness to appear at Monday's session at Mount Clemens, Mich., which began the eighth week of the trial.

Upon direct examination, Mr. Raymond admitted the authorship of the editorial, which was published in the International Harvester company and Standard Oil company stocks held by relatives of Henry Ford against the Chicago Tribune, denied also interference with his editorial utterances by the two principal owners of the paper, and then settled down to a cross-examination.

Ordinarily the policies of the Tribune were settled in conference, Mr. Raymond testified, but the Mexican policy was simply announced, without any conference. This was the policy of urging the United States to begin a war against her southern neighbor. The editorial writer, he testified, never once day that from that time forth intervention would be the policy.

Germany and Mexico.

Q.—"You understood that Germany wished that we should get into that trouble with Mexico, didn't you?"

A.—"Yes, sir. I understood that."

Q.—"And notwithstanding you knew that, you went right on in your paper, arguing for intervention in Mexico, didn't you?"

A.—"Yes, sir."

Q.—"The reasons why the Tribune managers adopted the policy of intervention were not for you in any way to act upon, were they?—you simply took your order on the subject?"

A.—"I got my instructions."

Attorney Lucking referred at length to the Tribune editorial which extolled Theodore Roosevelt because of his inflammatory utterances following the sinking of the Lusitania. The Tribune criticized Roosevelt because he was in favor of war with Mexico.

Q.—"And you kept that up all the time that you knew the Germans were trying to get us into war with Mexico, didn't you?"

A.—"I would have called him a traitor."

Q.—"What name would you have applied to Henry Ford if he had done anything like that, or if you had called your worst word on him?"

A.—"I would have called him a traitor."

Q.—"I thought you said 'traitor'."

A.—"I said 'traitor'."

Q.—"Well, Mr. Ford was against war with Germany, wasn't he?"

A.—"I believe he was."

Q.—"And he was against war with Mexico, too, wasn't he?"

A.—"I believe he was."

Q.—"And you knew it?"

A.—"I knew it."

Q.—"Was this editorial printed as you wrote it?"

A.—"Yes, sir."

Q.—"Who devised the headlines?"

A.—"I did."

Q.—"Did you talk with Mr. Blake about Mr. Ford being an anarchist?"

A.—"Yes, sir."

Q.—"You decided between you and an anarchist?"

A.—"Yes, sir."

Q.—"You wrote the editorial deliberately to denounce him as an anarchist?"

A.—"We wrote the editorial deliberately to characterize him as an anarchist."

Wages for Soldiers.

The cross-examination turned to the Tribune's campaign for the payment of wages to soldiers on the Mexican border and the care of their families. It had criticized Mr. Ford for being remiss in this particular. The witness said that the payment of wages was unusual, that it was done by only a few of the thousands of employers in Chicago, and that the Tribune itself stated late in October, 1918, that some of the employers were going back on their promises.

Q.—"Now, when the United States got into real trouble, the Tribune made no propaganda to pay wages, did it?"

A.—"No."

Q.—"And on the contrary, within two weeks after the declaration of war against Germany, the Tribune notified all its men that it would not take care of dependents, didn't it?"

A.—"I don't know."

Q.—"On pay salaries?"

A.—"I don't know that."

Q.—"In the war with Germany the

WHOSE LIQUOR WAS IT?

Rumor in Knoxville 250 Gallons Intended for Prominent Citizens There.

Knoxville, July 14.—(Special).—Rumors are current here, that the 250 gallons of whisky, three barrels of beer and one barrel of wine seized near Chilhowee park Tuesday night by federal authorities was intended for several prominent men of this city. The rumor is emphatically denied by men whose names are not mentioned.

J. Alvin Johnson, attorney for J. J. Ashe, who, together with Sam Locke, a negro, was arrested and indicted on a Read amendment charge in connection with the seizure, states that Mr. Ashe knows nothing whatever about the whisky being in the car; that Mr. Ashe had purchased two horses and two colts and a quantity of feed in Lexington, and that notice was received from the Southern Railway company to the effect that the horses had been loaded at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon and were expected to arrive here some time Tuesday night. Mr. Ashe realized that the horses had been in the car for over thirty hours, and that he went to the Chilhowee park siding to take them out of the car as soon as possible after the arrival. The attorney stated that the moving van had been taken to get the hay and feed. This, however, is not what was expected, Mr. Johnson states.

MONEY FOR SCHOOLS

Dalton Will Receive Maximum Amount
Under the Law.

Dalton, Ga., July 14.—(Special).—The public schools of Dalton this year will receive the maximum amount of money possible under the law for their management, for in apportioning the tax rate, the city council levied over one-third of the entire rate for school purposes. The rate remains at $1.40 per $100 as last year, but of the $1.40 the public schools get 10 cents. This means that the city will spend for public schools this year upward of $15,000 in addition to the $10,000 which will be received from the state, making a sum of over $25,000.

The Call of the Road

If you have an automobile you will make a trip this summer. Everybody's doing it. The road is calling—the long, smooth ribbon that leads over the hills to the far horizon.

You have heard the call of the open country, of the clear free breezes, of the long straight miles of road where you slip effortless through sun and shadow until it seems more like flying than driving. You have felt again in imagination the thrill of power and well-being that comes as your car eats up the easy miles and your eyes rest on new scenes and new beauties.

This will be a touring year in America. Thousands, yes, tens of thousands of cars will take the road. The hum of the motor will be heard from the pine woods of Oregon to the beaches of Florida, from the Painted Desert of the Southwest to the beautiful old roads of New England under their arching green branches. The tours will vary all the way from 100 miles to 10,000.

The Age of the Auto Tour

It is the same old call that bade our fathers load the prairie schooner and trek for the setting sun. Nowadays we ride on cushions and spend the night in good hotels, but it is the same old call that sends the blood dancing in your veins.

America has declared for the auto tour. It means adventure, pleasure, health and education for the whole family.

There are certain things that you must know if that tour is to be a success. First and foremost you must know the roads.

It is no sport to toll through mud and bump over chuckholes, to end the day in a village without a hotel and no place to buy gasoline. The choice of the right route is a vital factor in insuring the enjoyment of a trip.

How to Find the Right Road

By a special arrangement with the American Automobile Association, the most powerful touring association in America, the Washington Information Bureau of this paper is able to route any motorist from any one point to any other in the country—to answer any question he may want to ask about the trip. This service is entirely without cost, except a small charge for official maps when needed. State where you want to go, when you want to start, and how much time you can devote to the trip. We will plot the way. Don't wait until the eleventh hour before writing. Be sure to give plenty of time for a reply to reach you. Enclose a 2-cent stamp for return postage.
